Call for Participation: FETP Mentors Application

The University of Rwanda, in collaboration with Rwanda Biomedical Centre(RBC) through the Field Epidemiology Training Program (FETP), is pleased to invite passionate FETP graduates to join our Mentors Pool for the Frontline, Intermediate, and Advanced FETP programs.

This initiative is part of our continued effort to build a sustainable mentorship culture and to foster a strong sense of giving back to the community. By serving as a mentor, you play a pivotal role in shaping the next generation of field epidemiologists and ensuring the long-term success of FETP in Rwanda.

We are seeking FETP graduates who demonstrate:

- Heart for Service: Genuine desire to give back and support others
- Generous Spirit: Willingness to share knowledge and experience freely
- Community Mindset: Commitment to strengthening the FETP network
- Availability: Realistic capacity to support trainees consistently

Mentors for FETP Advanced and Intermediate Tiers

Eligibility:

- Master's degree in Field Epidemiology (required)
- At least one scientific publication (author or co-author)
- Minimum score of 70% in final academic transcript

Mentors for FETP Frontline Tier

Eligibility:

- Graduate of the FETP Intermediate or Advanced program
- Minimum of a Bachelor's degree
- Excellent interpersonal and teaching abilities

Your Commitment as a Mentor

As part of the FETP family, mentors are expected to:

- Guide and support assigned trainees to accomplish their field activities

UNIVERSITY of RWANDA

- Share knowledge and field experience generously
- Provide consistent encouragement and constructive feedback
